SHOW GROWS IN FAVOR

POULTRY AND PIGEON EXHIBIT AT MASONIC TEMPLE.

The poultry and pigeon show at the Masonic Temple continues to grow in favor and last night the largest crowd of the week was in attendance. Again today there was a fair turnout of not only the feathered stock fanciers, but of the mothers with their little tots, each of the latter casting a vote for a pair of pouter pigeons or chickens.

The offer of the officers of the show give a pair of pigeons or chickens to children under sixteen years of age has proved to be a record attraction. The prize winners yesterday were: Miss Elsa E. Rothrock, 1408 6th street northwest, one pair pigmy pouter pigeons; Miss Bertha Zirkle, 323 Jackson street, Anacostia,

Object of Interest.

One of the most interesting recent exhibits is a Gallus Bankiva chicken, a jungle fowl of India, owned by M. D. Baker of Hyattsville, Md., and is from a parent stock owned by Homer Davenport, which he imported from India, Eight colors are represented in its plumage, and scientists state, it is alleged, that all varieties of chickens descended from this jungle fowl.

rietles of chickens descended from this jungle fowl.

The largest collection in the show is that of Friendship Heights Poultry Company, which carried off a special prize, Mr. Morgan Steinmetz of this city won the first prize in the largest display of bantams. Marketmen and others who raise chickens are very much interested in the Rhode Island reds. which are noted for their color of skin when dressed and for their large eggs. Mr. Calvin Hicks of Rockville, Md., has an exhibit in bu? Wyandottes, which carried off all firsts and special prizes. In the display of pens of chickens the white Wyanottes owned by Mr. A. M. Lothrop are regarded as the most beautiful in the show, the fowls being snow white. Mr. Lothrop also has a large pen of barred Plymouth Rocks, which won a first prize. A clean sweep was made by Mr. J. F. Defandorf of Garrett Park, Md., in the prizes of white rocks. He also captured several white rocks. He also captured several resented, these being the black and bull orphingtons. The white leghorns ex-hibited by C. B. Krogmann of this city carried everything before them in prizes and it is stated this display is the best ever shown in this city.

Display of Pigeons

In the pigeon line an English blue pouter owned by John Hurley of this city is, stated to be the best ever bred in this city. A black pigmy pouter hen owned by the Friendship Heights poultry yards has won five cups in four years and is considered one of the best birds of its class in the United States. A silver pigniy pouter hen eight years old and owned by the same company has won six silver wherever exhibited. What are alleged to be the two best white pigmy pouters, hen and cock, in the country are exhibited, and each won a special prize.

The entire lot of little chicks which the incubator.

Pitchlynn of this city has a display of nineteen specimens of brown leghorns, and each chicken exhibited by her has carried off one or more prizes.
